

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

A saccadic motion detector comprised an optical system that focuses light reflected or emitted from the subject's eye onto an optical navigation chip, which 5 connects to circuitry configured to convert analog light from the eye to digital representations motion of the eye, including saccadic eye movement.